To Whom It May Concern:

In the Fall of 2008 Hurricane Ike Stuck a terrible blow to our church facilities, causing extreme damage to our roof, sanctuary, foyer, and many additional rooms. Our insurance agent recommended All Star Restoration to perform the emergency cover up and structural drying of the building. Corky and company were very prompt, resourceful, and a great transition team. All Star met with our adjuster and helped to expedite the claim process. They worked hand in hand with us and the insurance company. They also helped us to get electricity by supplying a large generator until our power was restored.

Thereafter, Corky Randolph, the owner of the company asked for the opportunity to perform the repairs and renovation of the property. Their company specializes in church renovations. They come highly recommended by their previous customers. However, the contractor that built our church is also a member of our congregation. In our case our board felt that it was prudent to use our own church member to perform the repairs. When Mr. Randolph was made aware that a contractor from the church was going to perform the work he was very gracious Mr. Randolph met with our contractor and offered any assistance the contractor may need to help with the insurance company settlement.

I commend their workmanship and integrity and believe they would do well in mitigation work or for that matter even a complete renovation.

Best Regards,
